Bollywood actress Janhvi Kapoor recently made a breathtaking appearance in a traditional golden half-saree designed by ace couturier Manish Malhotra, paying a heartfelt tribute to her late mother, legendary actress Sridevi. The look, which blends timeless South Indian tradition with modern couture elegance, has captured both fashion critics and fans alike.

The outfit, inspired by the iconic Pattu Pavadai style, featured a handwoven golden tissue lehenga paired with a bejewelled dori blouse adorned with intricate hand embroidery. The ensemble was completed with a matching tissue dupatta, draped in the classic half-saree style, symbolizing grace and heritage.

Speaking about the look, fashion experts noted that the choice of golden tones and traditional weaving techniques was not only visually striking but also emotionally significant. Golden Pattu Pavadai attire has deep cultural roots in South India, often associated with celebrations, elegance, and familial pride—making it a fitting homage to Sridevi, who often wore similar ensembles during her illustrious career.

Janhvi accessorized the look with traditional gold jewelry, keeping her makeup soft and her hair styled in elegant waves, allowing the ensemble to shine as the centerpiece.

The tribute has resonated strongly with fans, many of whom took to social media to praise Janhvi's ability to honor her mother's legacy while establishing her own unique style identity. Manish Malhotra, a long-time friend of Sridevi and mentor to Janhvi, expressed his joy in creating the ensemble, calling it "a labor of love that bridges memories with modern elegance."

With this appearance, Janhvi has once again proven her ability to blend fashion with emotion, creating moments that are as meaningful as they are visually stunning.
