Florals may be synonymous with spring-summer, but Manushi Chhillar just proved that they are timeless and seasonless. For a recent outing in Rajasthan, the former Miss World turned actor exuded effortless grace in a beige organza sari by Label Anushree, styled with a modern twist.

The sari, featherlight and ethereal, was adorned with a delicate mix of pastel botanicals, striking a balance between romance and subtlety. Designer Anushree Parekh, the creative force behind the label, described it as “one of our most versatile, yet subtle floral prints,” enhanced by a hand-embroidered border in soft hues of blue and pink. The look was completed with a matching floral blouse detailed with intricate threadwork and bead embellishments—a signature of Anushree’s design philosophy that blends craft with understated opulence.

While the sari itself radiated femininity, Manushi’s styling elevated it further. She accessorised with the striking Pana Choker by Ana?ash, featuring green pearls, which instantly transformed the look from daytime elegance to dusk-ready sophistication. Complementing the outfit were wedges from Aprajita Toor and chic Balenciaga sunglasses.

Her glam look was deliberately pared back: a sleek bun, dewy skin, sculpted brows, and nude lips created an au naturel finish. A tiny red bindi tied the entire look together, marrying old-world charm with Gen Z coolness.

Whether you’re a handloom collector or a modern sari enthusiast, Chhillar’s Label Anushree moment embodies versatility at its finest. It’s a sari you could drape at a festive brunch, a vibrant mehendi, or even an intimate wedding, proving that florals are not bound by seasons—they are forever timeless.
