

Gigi Hadid in Red: A Daring Reinvention of Vintage Glamour

Published on 23 Aug 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Gigi Hadid has never been one to shy away from a bold fashion moment—but in her latest V Magazine editorial, she doesn't just make a statement; she rewrites the narrative. Dressed in a powerfully tailored red suit, complete with a matching pencil skirt and dramatic accessories, Hadid channels Old Hollywood elegance with a rebellious modern twist. The shoot, styled with intention and flair, is more than just a display of designer fashion—it's a carefully curated homage to iconic femininity, reimagined for today's fashion-forward audience. With this look, Hadid once again proves why she's one of the most versatile and magnetic models of her generation.

A Red Suit That Commands the Room

At the center of the editorial is a striking red suit jacket and pencil skirt ensemble that immediately captures attention. The tailoring is sharp, the silhouette is commanding, and the monochrome palette is both classic and provocative. The choice of red—a color often associated with power, passion, and drama—elevates the outfit beyond simple elegance. It becomes a symbol of strength.

Paired with a structured red hat and delicate mesh veil, the look channels a level of vintage sophistication reminiscent of 1950s screen sirens. Yet, there's nothing dated about this presentation. Hadid carries the outfit with modern confidence, reminding us that timeless fashion is not about recreating the past—it's about reinterpreting it.

A Nod to Madonna and Fashion Rebellion

In another standout image from the shoot, Hadid changes the tone entirely. She appears in a black-and-white shot, kneeling dramatically with a leather jacket draped over her shoulders, revealing a Madonna-inspired coned bra underneath. It's raw, powerful, and unfiltered—a deliberate contrast to the refined red suit.

This part of the shoot taps into pop culture's history of fashion rebellion. The coned bra, made famous by Madonna in the 1990s, was more than just a provocative garment; it was a bold declaration of female agency and sexual empowerment. By referencing this piece, Hadid adds layers of narrative to the editorial—moving from classic to contemporary, from structured to subversive.

Fashion as Performance, Identity, and Attitude

What makes this shoot so powerful is not just the fashion itself, but the attitude behind it. Gigi Hadid doesn't merely wear clothes—she embodies them. Each pose, each gaze, each accessory becomes a piece of a larger story about identity, confidence, and the fluid power of femininity.

The red suit symbolizes command and charisma, while the leather-and-lingerie moment represents freedom and fearlessness. Together, they form a dual portrait of womanhood: refined and rebellious, poised and provocative.

In an industry where trends can feel fleeting, Hadid's performance in this editorial stands out as a timeless reminder of the emotional depth that fashion can convey. It's not just about what we see—it's about how it makes us feel.

Why It Resonates Now

As fashion continues to evolve alongside conversations about gender, power, and identity, this shoot arrives at the perfect time. The fusion of classic Hollywood styling with modern daring reflects a cultural moment where women are embracing every side of themselves—soft and strong, polished and raw.

Gigi Hadid's red suit isn't just a look—it's a message. It tells the world that elegance and edge are not mutually exclusive, and that style can be both a tribute and a challenge to what came before.
