Bollywood's style star Ananya Panday transformed the majestic Rambagh Palace in Jaipur into a fashion runway as she walked as the showstopper for designer Punit Balana's 10-year anniversary collection, Amer.

Dressed in a blazing hot-pink lehenga, Ananya looked every bit regal. The outfit was adorned with intricate Chandi Tille Ka Kaam embroidery, a traditional craft inspired by Rajasthani heritage. The design drew its essence from the grandeur of the Sheesh Mahal and Amer Fort, reflecting a deep connection to cultural artistry.

The ensemble featured a voluminous skirt paired with a modern, sleeveless blouse—an elegant blend of heritage embroidery with contemporary styling. The dramatic lehenga was further elevated with exquisite jewelry. Ananya wore a layered diamond-and-ruby choker, topped with a bold emerald neckpiece, along with matching earrings and bangles. The jewelry complemented the vibrance of the lehenga without overshadowing its intricate craftsmanship.

Her styling was equally striking. With her hair neatly pulled back into a high bun and makeup in dewy pink tones, Ananya exuded understated glamour. The look was chic yet festive, striking the right balance between bridal grandeur and runway-ready minimalism.

Why This Look Stands Out

- Regal Hue: The bold hot-pink shade was vibrant, playful, and perfect for modern bridal inspiration.
- Heritage Craftsmanship: Intricate embroidery showcased Rajasthan's rich artistry.
- Modern Twist: The sleeveless blouse and clean styling gave the outfit a fresh, contemporary edge.
- Showstopper Presence: Ananya's confident walk and elegance turned the palace setting into a cinematic spectacle.

Punit Balana's Amer collection was a celebration of ten years of his artistry, and Ananya Panday embodied its spirit perfectly. Her appearance in the hot-pink lehenga wasn't just a fashion statement—it was a moment of culture, elegance, and timeless beauty brought to life on the runway.
