

Kim Kardashian Turns Travel Into a Runway at the Venice Film Festival

Kim Kardashian has once again rewritten fashion rules—this time while arriving at the 2025 Venice Film Festival. Opting out of sweats or travel loungewear, she made a dramatic entrance in a striking black hooded dress with a keyhole cutout, paired with oversized sunglasses and pointed slingback pumps. The look, equal parts runway-ready and effortless, felt like a glamorous twist on her signature Skims aesthetic.

Her 12-year-old daughter, North West, accompanied her in equally compelling style. Sporting a gray pinstriped dress adorned with safety pins, chunky black boots, and a Balenciaga crossbody, North's bright blue hair pulled back in ponytails was an arresting fashion statement of her own.

This appearance marks Kim's first official visit to the Venice Film Festival—though the city has already served as a backdrop for high-profile events earlier this summer. Her confident airport moment underscored how she transforms every step into a visual statement, setting a high bar for her red carpet debut ahead.

Kim Kardashian's Venice arrival was more than a fashion moment—it was a reminder that style and presence can turn any place, even an airport, into a stage.
