Guess Who Just Served At Wimbledon? Neena Gupta In A Saree & That's Iconic!

Tennis might have been the highlight at Wimbledon 2025, but Neena Gupta just won her own fashion match point. While courtside fashion is usually all about chic dresses, blazers and breezy summer co-ords, the veteran actress turned heads by showing up in a white saree with a halter-neck blouse — effortlessly blending tradition with contemporary flair.

The Look That Stole The Show

Neena ji chose a pristine white hand-blocked saree featuring pinkish-red roses, paired with a halter-neck sleeveless blouse. The combination felt both demure and fresh, a nod to Indian craftsmanship seamlessly placed in an international setting.

- Accessories? Minimal and classy — big sunglasses, a clean bun, and no jewellery clutter.
- Mood? Elegant, laidback, yet commanding attention.

It's rare to see a saree courtside at Wimbledon, but Neena Gupta made it feel right at home.

Mother-Daughter Duo

Joining her was daughter and ace fashion designer Masaba Gupta, who kept things understated in an all-white look paired with an off-white jacket. The duo looked effortlessly stylish together, but it was Neena ji's saree serve that became the internet's hot topic.

Why This Matters

At a time when global events are dominated by Western silhouettes, Neena Gupta reminded everyone that the saree isn't confined to Indian occasions. Instead, it's versatile enough to shine alongside Wimbledon whites, all while celebrating homegrown craftsmanship.

Our Take

Trust Neena Gupta to deliver fashion with character. The saree wasn't just an outfit — it was a statement of identity, comfort, and timeless style. And in true Wimbledon spirit, we'd call this look a straight-set victory. ??
