

Malavika Mohanan Leads This Week's Beauty

Published on 30 Aug 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Malavika Mohanan's beauty look this week was a masterclass in monochromatic elegance. Her luminous base set the stage, providing a soft glow without veering into excessive shine. The eyes featured a smudged brown liner that extended outward, adding depth and drama, complemented by layered mascara for added intensity. However, it was her lips that truly stood out—a matte, cinnamon-toned brown lined deeply to enhance the monochrome mood, resisting the usual nude-pink default. This look was a testament to the power of tonal harmony, proving that a single color palette can convey sophistication and depth.

Janhvi Kapoor: Petal-Pink Harmony

Janhvi Kapoor embraced a soft, harmonious beauty look characterized by a matte-satin base that avoided over-glow or sculpt-heavy techniques. A gentle wash of peach-pink swept across her eyes and cheeks, creating a seamless gradient that exuded freshness. Her eyes were defined by a classic winged liner, adding structure and definition, while her lips sported a petal-pink nude shade that complemented the overall soft-toned aesthetic. This look highlighted the timeless appeal of subtlety, demonstrating that understated beauty can make a powerful statement.

Bhumi Pednekar: Vintage Drama with a Modern Twist

Bhumi Pednekar's beauty look this week walked the tightrope between classic and contemporary. Her skin caught the light with a glassy sheen, providing a luminous base that set the tone. The eyelids were dusted with champagne shadow and lined with a clean flick, offering a nod to vintage glamour. Rose-toned lips and a barely-there blush added softness, while the twin bindis brought back a vintage drama—refined, not retro. This look was a beautiful blend of tradition and modernity, showcasing how cultural elements can be seamlessly integrated into contemporary beauty trends.

Sanya Malhotra: The Art of Subtlety

Sanya Malhotra's beauty look was a lesson in the art of subtlety. Her base had the kind of dew that read more 'face mist' than foundation, allowing her natural texture to breathe through. Brows were softly defined, eyes washed in nude tones, and the liner flick kept subtle. The blush and lip color played in the same barely-there pink zone—enough to signal freshness, never effort. This look proved that less can indeed be more, highlighting the beauty of natural features and the elegance of restraint.

Genelia Deshmukh: Traditional Elegance

Genelia Deshmukh leaned into tradition with her beauty look this week. Her base was flawlessly set, providing a perfect canvas for her intensely defined eyes. Generous use of kohl and liner added drama, while muted-soft shadows added a subtle step. Sculpted brows and a rosy gloss lip enhanced her features, but it was the cultural accents—a bindi and nath—that carried the emotional weight of the look. This look highlighted the enduring appeal of traditional beauty elements and their ability to convey deep cultural significance.

Madhuri Dixit Nene: Radiant and Timeless

Madhuri Dixit Nene's beauty look this week was radiant and timeless. Her base was light and well-polished, allowing her skin to naturally shine. Eyes were subtly contoured with neutral shadows and a touch of kohl, while voluminous lashes added depth. A rosy blush lit up the cheeks, paired with mauve pink lips that echoed the tones of her ombré sari. This look was a beautiful blend of classic elegance and modern sophistication, showcasing the actress's timeless beauty.

Karisma Kapoor: Old-School Elegance

Karisma Kapoor's beauty look was a masterclass in old-school elegance. Smoked lids carried a mauve undertone that mirrored her lips, while full, brushed-up brows and wispy lashes added structure. Paired with a luminous base and side-swept waves, the look exuded sophistication and grace. This look demonstrated how classic beauty elements can be reinterpreted to create a modern yet timeless appearance
