

Susmita Chatterjee Explores Korean Flavors in Kolkata

Published on 01 Sep 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Dressed in cheery hues, actress Susmita Chatterjee embraced the monsoon's downpour with unrestrained joy. She joined t2ONLINE for an exploratory journey through the best Korean eateries Kolkata offers. Against grey skies and glistening streets, she ventured out with a warm smile, eager to discover new tastes amid the city's damp ambiance.

- An Asian Food Hunter in the City

- Titled "K-licious Korean food trail," the experience had Susmita hopping across various Asian dens in the city. Despite the rain, her spirit remained bright and animated—turning a regular food outing into a memorable delight.

- Revealing Korean Cuisine's Charm in Kolkata

- Though the full itinerary wasn't disclosed, her trail likely included popular Korean favorites—think bibimbap, mandu (dumplings), barbecue, and stew favorites like kimchi jjigae. Each flavor would stand out against steamed rice and aromatic broths, lifting the rainy pall with bold spices and textures.

- A Monsoon Mélange of Food & Fashion

- Her choice of bright attire added contrast to the drizzly backdrop. It wasn't just about tastiness—the visuals were cinematic: vivid colors against wet pavements, laughter blending with the patter of rain, and steam rising from hot bowls, creating a sensory symphony.

- What the Korean Food Trail Symbolizes

- This food trek illustrated how international cuisines continue to take root in metro cities like Kolkata. It showcased how, even amid rain, the warmth of community, shared food, and cultural exchange transcends weather. Susmita's public joy brought life to this narrative.

- A Taste of Authenticity and Adaptation

- Korean restaurants in the city often balance authenticity with local preferences. Hot spicy flavors may be slightly muted, fermented notes sprinkled lightly, and vegetarian adaptations abound. Susmita's trail may well have highlighted this blend: traditional ingredients dressed in Kolkata's culinary sensibilities.

- The Magic of Food Trails

- Food journeys like this one do more than feed the stomach—they nourish culture. They introduce audiences to ingredients like gochujang, doenjang, and sesame oil. They spotlight how food bridges geographies and enriches media narratives.

- The Role of t2ONLINE

- Through this outing, t2ONLINE continues its tradition of merging lifestyle, fashion, and culinary exploration. Their “eat outside day” content invites viewers to experience food as art and adventure blended into everyday urban life.

- Beyond the Food: Emotion & Atmosphere

- The rain didn’t deter enjoyment—it amplified it. Steam from sizzling hot plates mingled with the cool monsoon air. The contrast of flavors, warmth, and drenching rain painted a vivid tableau: comfort in chaos, delight in dampness.

- Susmita Chatterjee as Cultural Ambassador

- Her willingness to explore with zest—regardless of rain—enhances her relatability and charm. In leading this food trail, she becomes more than a celebrity: she’s a culinary muse guiding fans through tastes and textures of another culture, with authenticity and enthusiasm.
