

Best Looks from Venice Film Festival 2025

Published on 03 Sep 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

The Venice Film Festival 2025 was not just about cinema—it became a global runway where stars embraced high fashion. From timeless couture gowns to bold experimental ensembles, celebrities lit up the red carpet with unforgettable style. Designers from around the world used the event to showcase their finest creations, blending heritage craftsmanship with contemporary flair. Each look told its own story, turning the festival into a spectacular celebration of glamour and artistry.

1. Cate Blanchett — Armani Privé

Cate Blanchett stunned in a sleek black Armani Privé gown with a deep plunging neckline. The gown featured large gemstone-like onyx embellishments and architectural hip pockets. Originally worn at the 2022 SAG Awards, it felt both timeless and modern. She paired the look with black suede Jimmy Choo Romy heels and Louis Vuitton high jewellery. The ensemble radiated refined elegance, cementing her status as a red-carpet icon.

2. Emma Stone — Louis Vuitton

Emma Stone turned heads in a custom Louis Vuitton gown at the Bugonia premiere. The beaded, silver-and-ivory lace design combined delicate textures with bold glamour. At the photocall, she wore a sequined column gown with a playful bubble hem. Both looks balanced elegance and whimsy with effortless poise. She complemented the ensembles with Roger Vivier heel.

3. Amal Clooney — Jean-Louis Scherrer (Vintage)

Amal Clooney revived early 2000s high-low fashion with a vintage magenta-pink Scherrer gown. The mini dress featured a dramatic, voluminous train for runway-level drama. Accessories included Cartier earrings, a Grain de Café ring, and a Jimmy Choo clutch. Aquazzura metallic sandals added an air of subtle luxury. The look was a stunning reimagination of nostalgic glam with modern flair.

4. Ayo Edebiri — Chanel

Ayo Edebiri dazzled in a voluminous red Chanel gown adorned with layered buttons. The structured silhouette and bold color made a commanding statement. Her attire evoked modern elegance through volume and minimalist styling. The look aligned with her film appearance for After The Hunt. She carried the ensemble with confidence and contemporary grace.

5. Julia Roberts — Atelier Versace

Julia Roberts wore a refined navy crepe gown by Atelier Versace on the “After The Hunt” red carpet. The look was marked by sartorial tailoring and clean, modern lines. Chopard jewelry added a luxe finish to her ensemble. The gown’s elegance paired perfectly with her effortless Hollywood charm. It was a powerful yet restrained red-carpet statement.
