

Becca Bloom Ties the Knot in Rain-Kissed Lake Como Ceremony

Published on 04 Sep 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Social media star Becca Bloom (real name Rebecca Ma) married her longtime partner and software engineer David Pownall in a dreamy, intimate ceremony at Villa Balbiano. Surrounded by just 60 guests—which included her closest friends and family—the occasion was as deeply personal as it was picturesque.

A Couple with a Serendipitous Story

The wedding venue held sentimental value—David had proposed to Becca in Italy during a private boat ride in Positano in 2023, making Lake Como a meaningful choice. They also chose the ceremony date after a fortune teller designated it as auspicious—a decision Becca described as feeling like “the universe was pointing us toward that day.”

Despite ominous forecasts predicting thunderstorms, the skies performed a quiet miracle by clearing just in time for Becca’s walk down the aisle. “They say a wet knot is the hardest to untie, and that’s how our vows felt—bound, blessed, and enduring,” she later reflected.

A Wedding in Layers—Of Style and Emotion

True to her reputation as the “Queen of RichTok,” Becca brought thoughtful curation and flair to every moment. Her wedding weekend fashion included four standout designer looks:

- A hot-pink Oscar de la Renta mini dress for the rehearsal dinner, designed to feel playful and celebratory
- A whimsical Chanel archival dress featuring an ice cream motif
- A custom Oscar de la Renta gown embroidered with laser-cut peonies—symbolic of her Chinese heritage—for the ceremony
- A shattered-glass rose motif Oscar de la Renta gown for the reception, echoing the floral décor and dramatic theme

Jewelry from Van Cleef & Arpels, a Tiffany Victoria wedding band, and Chanel heels completed her bridal aesthetic.

Vows That Stuck—and a Night That Sparkled

The ceremony was deeply emotional. They exchanged handwritten vows rich with memory and hope. For David’s closing line, Becca shared that his words—expressing he wanted her face to be the only one he sees on his last day—left the gathering “with not a single dry eye.”

That night, the couple shared a cinematic dance under silver fireworks in the rain—an impromptu yet unforgettable moment. Becca recalled being lifted and spun while sparks lit up the night, laughter echoing like the climax of a romantic film.

Two Ceremonies, One Love Story

Both Becca and David describe themselves as introverted—and the thought of reading vows before a large crowd felt overwhelming. So while Lake Como offered intimacy, their parents are planning a grand, traditional Asian wedding back home—resulting in two celebrations that honor both privately held vision and familial legacy.
