Amanda Seyfried Breaks Red Carpet Rules in Style

Amanda Seyfried proved that comfort and glamour can go hand in hand at the Venice Film Festival 2025, where she was spotted wearing Cariuma sneakers not once, but three times during the star-studded event. While most celebrities leaned into towering heels and elaborate gowns, Seyfried's footwear choice stood out as both refreshingly relatable and effortlessly stylish.

Known for her roles in Mamma Mia! and The Dropout, Seyfried has long been admired for her approachable elegance. Her Venice appearances confirmed that she's not afraid to shake up traditional red carpet fashion expectations.

Sneakers Meet High Fashion

Sneakers on a film festival red carpet are rare, but Seyfried's repeated choice of Cariuma—an eco-friendly Brazilian footwear brand—signaled a deliberate statement. By pairing the casual staple with chic outfits, she highlighted the growing shift toward comfort-driven fashion without sacrificing sophistication.

On one occasion, she wore crisp white Cariuma sneakers with a tailored black jumpsuit, creating a polished yet relaxed aesthetic. Another look featured a flowy sundress paired with low-top sneakers, while her third appearance matched the brand's signature style with a sleek skirt-and-blouse ensemble.

The result? A masterclass in blending laid-back cool with red carpet-worthy confidence.

Why Cariuma?

Cariuma has become a celebrity favorite in recent years, praised for its sustainability, comfort, and minimalist designs. By stepping out in the brand multiple times at such a prestigious event, Seyfried not only spotlighted the label but also championed eco-conscious fashion choices—a growing priority in Hollywood.

Her decision resonated with fans who view sneakers as a staple of everyday wear, making her red carpet style feel more accessible and authentic.

Fans Applaud Amanda's Bold Choice

Social media quickly lit up with admiration for Seyfried's non-traditional festival footwear. Hashtags like #AmandaSeyfried, #Cariuma, and #VeniceFilmFestival2025 began trending as fans praised her ability to merge practicality with chic styling.

"Amanda Seyfried rocking sneakers on the red carpet is the vibe we all needed," one fan tweeted. Another posted, "Who else wants to buy Cariumas now? Amanda just made them look like couture."

The buzz underscored how her decision resonated with fashion-forward audiences tired of impractical red carpet norms.

Fashion Experts Weigh In

Style critics applauded Seyfried's Venice looks, noting how her sneakers never detracted from the elegance of her outfits but instead added a refreshing twist.

"Amanda Seyfried proved that sneakers can absolutely work at a high-profile film festival," one editor wrote. "Her styling was thoughtful and intentional, making the shoes look like part of the ensemble rather than an afterthought."

This move also highlighted a broader industry trend toward comfort couture—a growing willingness to embrace fashion that prioritizes wearability without compromising on impact.

A Defining Fashion Moment at Venice 2025

In a sea of gowns, sequins, and stilettos, Amanda Seyfried's choice to wear Cariuma sneakers at the Venice Film Festival 2025 was a bold reminder that authenticity often shines brightest. Her looks didn't just celebrate personal comfort—they made a cultural statement about where fashion is headed next.

Seyfried's sneaker moments will likely be remembered as some of the festival's most refreshing and conversation-worthy style highlights. With her balance of elegance, ease, and eco-conscious flair, she showed that even in the most glamorous settings, being yourself is always in fashion.
