

Rashmika Mandanna Stuns in Anarkali at Manhattan Parade

Published on 17 Sep 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

On Tuesday, Rashmika Mandanna walked the bustling avenues of Manhattan, turning the city streets into a stunning runway.

Moreover, she participated as co-grand marshal at the 43rd India Day Parade, celebrating Indian culture in New York. Furthermore, the event highlighted the unity of the Indian diaspora, while promoting the country's rich traditions globally.

Anarkali Details: Heritage Meets Style

Rashmika wore a Ritu Kumar anarkali from the "Threads of Time: Reimagined" collection, showcasing intricate traditional Indian craftsmanship.

The muted beige base of the outfit featured fine embroidery, reflecting centuries-old artisan skills while maintaining modern elegance.

In addition, a vivid red dupatta with metallic detailing added contrast, enhancing the ensemble's vibrancy and visual appeal.

Accessorizing and Styling

She paired the outfit with a heavy choker and matching earrings, complementing the intricate embroidery with subtle glamour.

Meanwhile, her sleek low bun and soft makeup added sophistication, while also keeping the focus on the ensemble itself.

Additionally, Rashmika wore flat ethnic sandals, which balanced comfort with style, making the look wearable yet regal simultaneously.

Impact on Fashion and Culture

Rashmika's appearance emphasized the global presence of Indian fashion and cinema, drawing attention internationally to traditional attire.

Furthermore, her participation in the parade demonstrated how Indian clothing can be modernized, while respecting cultural heritage and symbolism.

Consequently, her look inspired fans and fashion enthusiasts, encouraging them to embrace ethnic wear for contemporary occasions confidently.
