Published on 20 Sep 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

At 2 AM on September 19, 2025, Candice Swanepoel made a striking exit from the exclusive Mert & Marcus 71 Gin after-party during New York Fashion Week. Her appearance transformed the sidewalk into a runway, showcasing her impeccable style and poise.

The Midnight Lace Gown

Candice wore a navy lace evening gown that seamlessly blended delicacy with boldness. The gown featured intricate lace detailing along the bodice and hem, complemented by sheer panels that added a touch of allure. Strategic side cutouts and a backless design, secured with ribbon-like straps, lent the silhouette an architectural edge. A thigh-high slit introduced an element of drama, elongating her frame with every step.

Accessories and Styling

To allow the gown to take center stage, Candice kept accessories minimal. She carried a small black clutch and wore strappy heels that grounded the look. Her long blonde hair was styled in soft waves, adding a touch of softness to the gown's sharp geometry. Her makeup was luminous and restrained, achieving an effortless finish that was particularly striking in the early morning hours.

A Fashion Finale

Whether it was an after-party exit or the night's true finale, Candice's appearance at the 71 Gin party proved that event exits can double as front-row fashion moments. Her midnight lace gown not only showcased her model-off-duty elegance but also made NYFW's 2 AM feel like prime time.
