Romeo Beckham's London Fashion Week Debut

Romeo Beckham, at 23, made his London Fashion Week debut by walking the H&M runway. The event, held at 180 The Strand in central London, featured a star-studded lineup, including Lila Moss, Paloma Elsesser, and Alex Consani. Beckham donned a black leather flight jacket paired with matching trousers, showcasing his growing presence in the fashion industry.

A Star-Studded Event

The H&M show kicked off London Fashion Week with a blend of fashion and music. British singer Lola Young made her fashion week debut in a biker jacket and chain-embellished boots, later performing her hit "Messy" for the audience, which included Emily Ratajkowski, Central Cee, and Little Simz.

Beckham's Fashion Legacy

Romeo's debut continues the Beckham family's fashion legacy. His mother, Victoria Beckham, walked for Maria Grachvogel in 2000, and his older brother, Brooklyn, participated in Vogue World 2022 in New York. Romeo has previously modeled for Balenciaga and Versace, establishing himself as a rising star in the fashion world.
