Published on 23 Sep 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Sonam Kapoor captivated audiences at London Fashion Week 2025.

She appeared at Anamika Khanna's AK|OK debut show.

The iconic Hamleys toy store served as the perfect backdrop, combining nostalgia with high fashion.

The Ensemble: Heritage Meets Modernity

Sonam wore a custom outfit from AK|OK's Spring 2026 collection.

The ensemble featured intricate chikankari embroidery, blending traditional Indian craftsmanship with modern design.

Additionally, the silhouette was contemporary, proving that heritage can be versatile. The collection's setting at Hamleys added a whimsical touch, with pieces inspired by childhood memories and traditional crafts.

Styling and Impact

The whimsical Hamleys setting enhanced the collection's charm. Sonam's appearance emphasized elegance and cultural pride simultaneously. For the occasion, Sonam donned a custom ensemble from AK|OK's Spring 2026 collection, which masterfully fused traditional Indian craftsmanship with contemporary silhouettes. The outfit featured intricate chikankari embroidery, a hallmark of Indian heritage, reimagined in a modern context.

Moreover, her outfit highlighted Anamika Khanna's creative vision and attention to detail.

Cultural Significance

By attending, Sonam reinforced her support for Indian designers internationally.

Her presence bridged Indian heritage and global fashion, inspiring designers and fans alike.

Ultimately, the look was a statement of sophistication, tradition, and contemporary style.
