

Alia Bhatt Steals the Show at Milan Fashion Week in Gucci

Published on 24 Sep 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Alia Bhatt appeared at Milan Fashion Week during Gucci's film screening and turned heads instantly. As global brand ambassador, she walked into a cinematic set up by Gucci to open the week. Notably, Gucci also screened The Tiger, which coincided with the runway debut of creative director Demna's latest collection. Thus, the environment was both theatrical and charged with fashion energy.

The Outfit

First, she wore an oversized black fur coat with dropped shoulders, long full sleeves and a calf-length hem. Meanwhile, the coat was cinched at the waist with a chunky gold Gucci chain belt in order to sculpt the silhouette. Underneath, she wore a nude satin mini dress featuring a plunging neckline and lace accents for intimate detailing. Furthermore, sheer Gucci monogram stockings peeked through the coat's front slit, blending risqué flair and luxury.

Accessory & Styling Details

In addition, she opted for pointed black heels that matched the dramatic outer coat while maintaining harmony. Also, a structured top-handle bag added sophistication without overpowering the outfit. Her jewellery choices were subtle: Gucci monogram earrings and a delicate gold ring brought sparkle without excess. Thus, accessories framed the look rather than upstaging it.

Beauty Look

Her hair was parted in the middle and left loose, which softened the otherwise strong fashion statement. Additionally, her makeup leaned into Milanese glamour: smoky eyes, smudged kohl lining, muted blush tones and glossy pink lips. Highlighter and contouring defined her features under the event's lights yet remained natural-looking. Overall, beauty balanced edge and softness in perfect tandem.

Significance Beyond the Outfit

Moreover, Alia's appearance carried symbolic weight for Gucci's global identity. She embodied Demna's new vision for the house, particularly its La Famiglia collection, available in only ten stores globally for a limited period. Thus, she did not merely attend; she represented the brand's ambitions in international fashion. Furthermore, being one of the few Indian faces on such stages amplifies cross-cultural outreach.

Reactions & Presence Among Celebrities

Although the guest list included big names like BTS's Jin, Serena Williams, Kendall Jenner and Demi Moore, Alia held her own. She was not overshadowed by others despite the star-power around her. Also, she brought her own narrative, one that blends cosmopolitan style with confident individuality. Thus, her presence marked more than photo-ops; it became a fashion moment.

Fashion Takeaway

Ultimately, her ensemble juxtaposed softness and strength. The satin mini + lace accents offered intimacy, while the fur coat and dramatic accessories projected boldness. Additionally, sheer stockings added risqué overtones without stepping into vulgarity. Hence, the look exemplified how to mix opposing fashion elements into a cohesive statement.
