At Vogue India's Forces of Fashion 2025, held in association with Rabanne, veteran actress Neena Gupta graced the event in a black gown designed by her daughter, fashion designer Masaba Gupta. Overall ensemble seamlessly blended traditional Indian elements with contemporary eveningwear, reflecting the evolving landscape of Indian fashion.

The Gown: A Fusion of Tradition and Modernity

The strap-slimmed black gown was crafted from dense crepe and featured vertical zari embroidery inspired by temple jewellery motifs. Therefore intricate detailing drew the eye downward, merging Indian craftsmanship with a modern silhouette. Adding a touch of traditional elegance to the contemporary design.

Statement Jewellery and Styling

To complement the gown, Neena Gupta accessorized with striking emerald-and-gold jewellery, including a choker set, coordinating drop earrings, stacked rings, and sculptural bangles. Her hair style in a sleek high bun with a center part, allowing the neckline and jewellery to take center stage. Makeup was kept luminous and minimal, with glowing skin, softly kohled eyes, and a nude lip, enhancing the overall sophisticated look.

A Mother-Daughter Collaboration

This appearance underscores the strong bond between Neena and Masaba Gupta, showcasing their collaborative spirit in the fashion industry. Masaba's design not only highlighted her creative prowess but also celebrated the fusion of generational talent and vision.
