Celebrate Navaratri in Style with RASA Jewels' Oxidised Opulence Collection

As the festive drums of Navaratri echo through India, so does a renewed call for celebration, style, and self-expression. This season, RASA Jewels unveils its breathtaking Oxidised Opulence Collection, a tribute to traditional artistry and modern spirit through handcrafted sterling silver jewellery.

Whether you're spinning through Garba nights or stepping into Durga Puja adorned in a power sari, the pieces in this collection are designed to move with you, capturing the essence of festivity and freedom.

Made from 92.5 sterling silver, each design is a tapestry of filigree work, granulation, and hand embossing, breathing life into age-old jewellery techniques. Think oversized jhumkas, temple-inspired chokers, crochet chains, and layered necklaces—each with a distinct oxidised finish that adds an earthy, vintage appeal.

"The collection draws inspiration from temple motifs, tribal jewellery, and heirloom silver pieces," says Manan Bohra, co-founder of RASA Jewels. "It exudes the celebratory energy of the festive season, where jewellery becomes more than just adornment—it becomes self-expression."

The Oxidised Opulence line isn't just about looks—it's also about wearability. With its lightweight construction and versatile scaling, the jewellery transitions effortlessly from day rituals to night revelries. From heavy lehengas to fusion wear, each piece is built to complement both traditional and contemporary outfits.

What sets this collection apart is its resonance with the modern Indian woman. In an era leaning towards slow fashion, sustainable design, and personal expression, oxidised silver provides a refreshing alternative to the formality of gold.

"Oxidised silver has incredible versatility," Manan explains. "It offers freedom—freedom to express, to experiment, and to embrace your individuality."

So this Navaratri, let your jewellery dance with you. Celebrate the fusion of heritage and style with RASA Jewels' Oxidised Opulence Collection—where every piece tells a story, and every story sparkles with soul.
