

Tabu Radiates Elegance in White & Gold Saree at Navratri Gathering

Bollywood veteran Tabu made heads turn at a recent Navratri celebration. She opted for a white saree accentuated by a broad antique-gold border. Yet although her choice was simple, it radiated a grandeur that many bold outfits aim for. Moreover, her style reaffirmed that elegance can be both subtle and powerful.

Her saree—presumably silk or a silk blend—had a delicate sheen, catching light as she moved. Meanwhile, the contrast between the crisp ivory of the saree's base and the molten richness of the gold border created a visual harmony. Thus, the ensemble balanced purity with opulence.

The Blouse & Accessories

In addition to the saree, Tabu wore a richly embellished blouse. Its metallic threadwork brought texture, while intricate embroidery added depth. Because the blouse had close-cut sleeves and a detailed neckline, it enhanced the regal frame without overwhelming the saree.

Furthermore, her jewellery complemented rather than competed. A statement choker necklace studded with gemstones.

Styling That Speaks Volumes

Tabu has long been admired for letting her clothing do the talking. On this occasion, she did just that. Her hair was pulled back in a clean bun; makeup remained refined, focusing on enhancing natural features. Through this, she avoided over-styling, and thus kept the attention on the saree and craftsmanship.

Heritage & Timelessness Over Trends

While fashion trends often favour bold colours, experimental drapes, or flashy accessories, Tabu's Navratri look resisted all that. Instead, she drew on traditional Indian aesthetics: the white-and-gold saree—a pairing long revered in many parts of India. Moreover, the gold zari border pointed to heritage craftsmanship.
