Diana Penty recently showcased a striking ensemble by Tarun Tahiliani, blending traditional craftsmanship with contemporary tailoring. The outfit featured a sequin-trimmed jacket adorned with long fringe panels, reminiscent of exaggerated pocket flaps, paired with high-waisted, wide-leg black trousers. Therefore combination highlighted Tahiliani's signature fusion of Indian textile traditions and modern design.

Design Details

The jacket's tonal sequins caught the light, adding a subtle shimmer, while the fringe panels introduced dynamic movement to the look. The deep V-neckline of the shirt beneath the jacket added an element of ease to the structured ensemble. Thus wide-leg trousers provided balance, allowing the intricate details of the top to stand out without competition.

Styling and Accessories

To complement the outfit, Penty chose pointed black pumps with small bows, adding a touch of femininity to the ensemble. Thus her hair was styled in a low bun with a single loose strand, offering a relaxed yet polished appearance. Makeup was bronzed and understated, featuring defined eyes, muted peach lips, and luminous skin. Stylist Namita Alexander opted for minimal jewelry, selecting ornate antique-gold stud earrings to enhance the vintage feel of the look.

Fashion Insight

Vogue India Associate Fashion Editor Divya Balakrishnan suggests that to emulate this look, one could swap the black trousers for high-waisted fitted denim bell bottoms to add length. Incorporating Western detailing like yoke seams or pearl snaps in the shirt, tucking it in with a worn leather belt, and pairing with pointed boots and tousled hair would complete the ensemble.
