Dharki's Grishma Collection Celebrates the Calm Elegance of Indian Summers

Published on 29 Sep 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Dharki's Grishma Collection captures the unhurried elegance of Indian summers, inspired by the soft golden lull between late evening and twilight. Designed by founder Brijesh Gupta, the collection is a tribute to the calm rhythm of cities like Varanasi, where late evenings carry a sense of stillness and memory.

Crafted from feather-light silks, Chanderi, and organza, the collection is designed to be breathable yet poetic in motion. The palette draws from the Indian summer landscape—muted golds, dusty pinks, wine, and mauve—while the silhouettes feature clean drapes, wide borders, and fluid forms, creating effortless day-to-dusk wear.

Grishma showcases Dharki's commitment to craft, employing the traditional Kadwa weaving technique, where every motif is hand-woven into the fabric. Gupta shares, "This work demands time and patience, but it gives the textile real character." Each piece embodies a quiet elegance, reflecting both heritage craftsmanship and contemporary sensibility.

With Grishma, Dharki reaffirms its dedication to artisanal Indian textiles, offering garments that celebrate the timeless poetry of Indian summers.
