

Péro's Our Flowers Flower: Archival Florals Reimagined with Liberty London

Published on 04 Oct 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

New Delhi, India – Celebrated for its poetic take on craft and clothing, Péro has unveiled a new capsule collection titled Our Flowers Flower. Designed by Aneeth Arora, the collection draws inspiration from the untamed beauty of wildflowers, capturing their spontaneity, resilience, and unfiltered joy.

Founded in 2009, Péro has become synonymous with heritage-driven fashion that transcends seasonal trends. Aneeth, who trained in Textile Design at NID Ahmedabad and later in Fashion Design at NIFT, continues to infuse academic precision with instinctive artistry in her work.

A Collaboration Rooted in Florals

This capsule sees Péro collaborating with Liberty London, renowned for its iconic floral prints. “Our Flowers Flower is about blossoms that bloom in unexpected places,” says Aneeth. “We reinterpreted Liberty London’s classic ditsy florals through the Péro lens, creating a collection that feels rebellious, androgynous, and joyfully uncontained.”

Motifs & Craft Details

Florals take center stage in this edit, but not in predictable ways. Each garment features its own bespoke ‘bouquet’ expressed through:

- Hand-embroidered beadwork
- Fabric origami petals
- Dangling tassels mimicking stamens
- Delicate hand-crochet accents
- Appliqué and patchwork finishes
- Custom buttons crafted as floral details

The result is a playful reinterpretation of archival florals that feels both rooted in tradition and refreshingly contemporary.

Colour & Fabric Story

The palette draws from soft, summery hues — sky blue, butter yellow, blush pink, rose, lavender, and mauve — all anchored on Liberty London’s creamy base tones, evoking nostalgia while staying modern.

The fabric of choice is Liberty London’s iconic Tana Lawn cotton, prized for its featherlight drape, breathability, and luxurious feel. Its fluidity lends itself perfectly to Péro’s free-flowing silhouettes.

Silhouettes to Expect

From shirts and dresses to jackets, skirts, pants, and shorts, the silhouettes are intentionally flowy, androgynous, and unrefined, mirroring the unpredictability of wildflowers in bloom.

Looking Ahead

While Our Flowers Flower celebrates spontaneity and florals in full bloom, Aneeth confirms that Péro is already deep in work for the next two seasons. “Since we weave our own fabrics, our process begins almost two years in advance,” she notes. Future collections, she hints, will continue to explore heritage crafts, emotionally resonant narratives, and exciting new collaborations.

With Our Flowers Flower, Péro reaffirms its philosophy: fashion that feels personal, poetic, and timeless — much like a wildflower that blooms where it’s least expected.
