Kendall Jenner made a striking appearance at Matthieu Blazy's debut runway show for Chanel during Paris Fashion Week. Held at the Grand Palais, the event attracted over 2,000 guests, including Margot Robbie, Nicole Kidman, and Jeff Bezos with Lauren Sánchez. Harper's BAZAAR

The Ensemble: A Nod to Timeless Elegance

Jenner showcased a classic Chanel set featuring a fitted black tweed jacket with chunky buttons and dainty lapels. The jacket's slightly structured shoulders complemented her burgundy handbag. She paired the jacket with a low-rise pencil skirt that revealed a hint of midriff, designed with functional pockets and a tailored, straight-line fit just below the knee. Her pointy flats added a touch of brightness with their color-blocked toes, enhancing the ensemble's muted hues.

Beauty and Styling Details

To complement her outfit, Jenner opted for a smooth blowout hairstyle with curled ends, adding volume and bounce. Her makeup featured a natural complexion with a subtle rosy blush, and chunky silver earrings highlighted the shine of the jacket's buttons. This polished look underscored her status as a fashion icon at the event.
