Published on 13 Oct 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Television and film actress Sahher Bamba stepped onto the runway for the first time at Lakmé Fashion Week x FDCI 2025.

Immediately after her walk, she described the experience as “powerful”—a reflection of the emotional and creative energy she brought to the stage.

From Screen to Ramp

While she’s best known for her screen roles—especially in the show Bads Of Bollywood—this runway debut marked a new chapter.

Transitioning from acting to modeling is not effortless, yet she approached it with purpose and determination.

Despite it being her first walk, she carried herself with composure. Moments of hesitation were few, replaced by clear conviction.

The Look & Its Impact

Sahher’s outfit fused drama and elegance. She wore a statement piece that balanced bold design with graceful drape. Every fold, every silhouette, spoke to the show’s broader theme of strength and beauty.

Lighting, music, and choreography all aligned to enhance her presence. When she paused at the end of the ramp, cameras clicked in rhythm.

Her final pose radiated confidence—exactly what she intended to convey.

Why She Chose “Powerful”

For Sahher, this debut was more than a fashion moment—it was symbolic.

She said the word “powerful” reflected how she felt stepping into a new arena. It also acknowledged the courage it takes to push boundaries and try something outside one’s comfort zone.

Moreover, she expressed gratitude—to designers, stylists and mentors.
