At the glamorous Diwali celebration hosted by Manish Malhotra, Ananya Panday stepped onto the red carpet in attire that balanced youthful flair with traditional elegance. Though many attendees embraced classic sarees and heavy embellishments, Ananya's styling leaned lighter and more modern—standing out with its freshness amid the high-glamour crowd.

The Look: Pastel Palette & Ethnic Ease

Ananya chose a pastel toned outfit composed of a flowing kurta paired with wide palazzo pants—a combination that offered both comfort and visual appeal.

The soft color choice suited her youthful persona. It also provided a subtle contrast against more saturated, heavy festive looks around her that night. The outfit's embroidery was delicate—not overbearing—allowing the silhouette and fabric to come forward.

Styling: Effortless & Grounded

To complement her pastel ensemble, Ananya kept her styling minimal. Her hair was left open, loose, and slightly wavy—a relaxed finish that softened the overall look.

Makeup followed the same ethos: warm, glowing, with light definition rather than bold strokes. The idea was clearly to let the outfit speak without competing with heavy makeup or loud accessories.

Why This Look Works

- Balance of youth & tradition: Ananya's outfit succeeded in bridging festival wear with a younger aesthetic.
- Softness amid opulence: In a setting full of shimmer and statement pieces, her softer palette and lightweight drape provided a refreshing contrast.
- Cohesive styling restraint: By maintaining minimalist hair and makeup, she ensured no single detail overwhelmed the rest.
