At Lakmé Fashion Week 2025 in New Delhi, Tabu delivered a compelling performance on the runway. She walked as the showstopper for the ITRH “Noor” collection by designers Mohit Rai & Ridhi Bansal. Her look redefined bridal couture, marrying heritage with modern grace.

The Outfit: Deep Green Anarkali & Ornate Ghaghra

Tabu wore a deep green embellished Anarkali that immediately caught attention. The ensemble featured:

- Intricate embroidery and shimmering zari work throughout the Anarkali.
- A heavily ornate ghaghra underlay, which added volume, movement, and regal depth to the silhouette.
- Craftsmanship described as “hard work” — rich handwork, heritage detailing that underscored the luxury of the collection.

Styling: Accents & Finishing Touches

To complement the grandeur, the styling was thoughtful and refined:

- She accessorised with statement jhumkas and a matha patti, adding bridal elegance without overwhelming the overall look.
- Her makeup was minimal and glowing, emphasizing her natural beauty. The finish leaned radiant rather than heavy.
- Her hair was styled in a sleek bun — a classic choice that keeps focus on her outfit and jewellery.

The Theme: Tradition Meets Eternal Grace

The “Noor” collection is defined by its theme of bridal metamorphosis — from shy beginnings to radiant confidence. Therefore designers used classic silks, jadau-inspired jewellery, and heavy heritage handwork to evoke a sense of timeless bridal splendor.

Key Takeaways

- Color Choice: Thus deep-green hue stood out among more common reds or pastels in bridal wear, adding richness and freshness.
- Balance of Elements: Ornate embroidery and heavy work were offset by simple finishing touches — minimal makeup, classical hair, and restrained accessories.
- Silhouette Appeal: Finally the flow of Anarkali + ghaghra provided drama and movement without losing elegance.
