

Madison Beer Shines at VS 2025: From Sheer Black to Angelic Wings

Published on 16 Oct 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Madison Beer stunned audiences at the 2025 Victoria's Secret Fashion Show. Long before any model stepped onto the runway, she had already turned eyes — first with a dramatic red-carpet entrance, then with a high-energy performance dressed as a VS Angel.

The Red Carpet Moment

Beer arrived in an all-black, sheer gown built with shoelace-string detailing. The dress fused sensuality and edge, creating visual impact before the main show even began.

The look was lauded online. Many users commented that she “passed as a VS Angel” even before the show started. Her presence on the pink carpet set a bold tone — one of confidence, theatricality, and star power.

From Entry to Angelic Performer

That duality—arriving in black, then appearing as an angel—captured her versatility. She wasn't just a carpet guest; she became part of the spectacle.

She also wore Jimmy Choo slingbacks, showing that her styling included even the finer fashion details.

Reinventing Expectations

Typically, Victoria's Secret performances and runway walks are divided by role — models model, and musical guests perform. Beer collapsed those boundaries. She arrived as fashion, then became part of the show.

Representation & Attention

A powerful entrance like this draws visibility. As an established artist crossing into fashion-crossover territory, Beer's performance underscores how entertainment, identity, and style increasingly overlap.

Strong Messaging

The choices she made — sheer black for drama, pink wings for transformation — communicate narrative. One could read it as a story of ascension: from dark mystery to illuminated presence.
