

Sonia Passi: From Culinary Maven to Fashion Stylist

Published on 17 Oct 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Sonia Passi, a name synonymous with elegance and creativity, is making waves in the world of fashion styling. Known for her impeccable taste and artistic sensibility, Sonia has seamlessly transitioned from being a culinary connoisseur and hostess to a budding fashion stylist. In an exclusive interview with HELLO! India, she opens the doors to her opulent Delhi home and shares insights into her multifaceted journey.

A Culinary Passion Rooted in Family

Sonia's foray into the culinary arts was deeply influenced by her devotion to her family. Cooking became her love language, a way to express care and creativity. "As a mother of two, I always found joy in experimenting with new dishes. Frankly, it was about seeing my children's faces light up at the dinner table," she shares. Her culinary skills evolved over time, leading her to host memorable soireés that have become the talk of Delhi's elite circles. Her friends affectionately refer to her as the "modern desi Martha Stewart and Nigella Lawson."

Hosting with Elegance and Warmth

Hosting is an art form for Sonia. She believes in creating experiences that linger long after the evening ends. "For me, it's about the joy of hosting — the laughter that lingers long after dinner, the compliments that come days later," she says. Her gatherings are meticulously curated yet infused with effortless warmth and camaraderie, making her home a sought-after venue for intimate gatherings.

Transitioning into Fashion Styling

Known for her impeccable fashion sense, Sonia has always had a keen eye for style. She has been instrumental in assembling ensembles, curating accessories, and creating mood boards for various occasions, including weddings and vacations.
