The designer's latest collection is a poetic dialogue between strength and softness—an introspective celebration of ten years of her label.

Designer Richa Khemka commemorates a milestone moment with her new collection, “Vantage,” which beautifully balances reflection with reinvention. Celebrating a decade of her eponymous label, Vantage is both a meditation on evolution and a statement of identity—a dialogue between fluid femininity and quiet strength.

The collection explores fluidity and form through tactile contrasts—rich velvets, sheer organza, and delicate metallic accents come together in harmony. Each ensemble carries a sense of movement and mindfulness, with hand-embroidered pearls and subtle beadwork adding just the right amount of shimmer.

The Art of Subtle Grandeur

At first glance, Vantage radiates calm. Its sculptural yet free-flowing silhouettes—from draped gowns and layered skirts to structured jackets and fluid coordinates—reflect Richa's ability to marry precision with ease. The colour palette leans into whites, molten metallics, and soft earth tones, lending the collection a luminous, ethereal grace.

“Over the years, my work has always been rooted in emotion,” says Richa. “But Vantage carries a certain maturity. There’s restraint in the design language, yet depth in the detailing. It’s my most tonal collection so far, built on texture rather than heavy embellishment.”

A Decade in Reflection

With Vantage, Richa revisits the philosophy that shaped her creative journey—thoughtful craftsmanship, emotion-led design, and timeless femininity. The collection feels deeply personal, embodying not just her aesthetic evolution but her philosophy of creating garments that move with the wearer, not against them.

Every stitch, fold, and layer in Vantage mirrors a moment of growth—a visual diary of ten years of experimentation, intuition, and emotional depth.
