At the 2025 WWD Honors gala in New York City, Anne Hathaway stepped into the spotlight alongside husband Adam Shulman, delivering both a fashion moment and a couple's moment.

The Gown:

A Vintage Masterpiece Hathaway wore an archival Valentino couture piece from the Fall 2003 collection. A scarlet gown distinguished by delicate spaghetti straps tied in bows, tiered skirt ribbons, and a fitted bodice that flows beautifully. >Therefore she notes that the gown held personal significance, as that year she first met Valentino co-founders. The evening served as a rare public outing for the pair — and Hathaway chose to mark it in bold, romantic style.

Styling & Red-Carpet Details

- Accessories: Hathaway kept jewellery elegant — opting for diamond drop earrings and matching rings.
- Hair & Makeup: With the red gown as the focal piece, her hair was styled simply, and her makeup featured a matching red lip—echoing the gown's bold tone.
- Partner styling: Adam Shulman complemented her look in a classic black suit with an open-collared shirt, allowing the couple to balance each other on the red carpet.

Anne Hathaway's appearance at the 2025 WWD Honors was more than just a glamorous red-carpet moment—it was a layered statement. By choosing an archival Valentino gown rich in history, she honoured fashion's past while making a present-day mark. The result? A look that's timeless, meaningful and beautifully executed.
