

Millie Bobby Brown Channels ‘Upside Down’ Glamour

At the Los Angeles premiere of Stranger Things 5 (Volume One drops Nov 26), Millie Bobby Brown embraced what can only be described as “method dressing.” Dressed in a custom Rodarte gown, she visually echoed the series’ eerie parallel realm — the “Upside Down.”

Details That Tell a Story

The gown featured a corseted bodice with a low sweetheart neckline, trimmed in feathers and ruffles. The asymmetrical straps— one draped off the shoulder, the other trailing up the arm— added dramatic flair.

The skirt’s sheer body consisted of floral lace layered under glittery tulle, designed to evoke the shadowy, web-like substance of the series’ supernatural realm.

Accessories & Styling

Brown completed the look with tri-strand diamond duster earrings and a sleek bun with two loose strands framing her face. The styling balanced the gothic fantasy of the dress with modern elegance.

Why It Works

By wearing a gown that clearly references her show, Brown turned the red carpet into part of the narrative. The choice links her character’s world with her real-life style, making the premiere image more than fashion—it becomes an extension of the story.
