

Lakhotia College of Design's Love India 2025 Graduation Fashion Show

Published on 23 Dec 2025 | By IFI Correspondent

Lakhotia College of Design brought its annual graduation fashion showcase “Love India 2025” to life at The Amaltaas Fort, spotlighting the creativity and innovation of its graduating students. The event presented an inspiring celebration of Indian design heritage and contemporary fashion sensibilities.

A Grand Stage for Young Designers

The Love India 2025 runway featured 18 fashion sequences curated by more than 50 emerging designers from the college's campuses in Abids, Banjara Hills and Tarnaka. Each sequence reflected the students' artistic vision, merging traditional Indian textiles with modern aesthetics.

The show drew a vibrant audience of fashion enthusiasts, including celebrated figures, industry experts, influencers and media personalities — underscoring the event's importance as a platform for new talent.

Beyond the Runway: Cultural Festivities

More than just a fashion showcase, the evening extended into a Royal Ghazal Night, offering guests an immersive cultural experience blending music and fashion. This fusion of performance and design highlighted the college's commitment to celebrating creative expression in diverse forms.

Love India 2025 stood as a testament to youthful creativity, contemporary design and India's rich fashion legacy — reinforcing Lakhotia College of Design's role in shaping the future leaders of the fashion industry.

Spotlight on India's Fashion Future

As emerging designers step into the spotlight, events like Love India 2025 offer a launching pad for fresh voices in fashion, combining heritage inspiration with contemporary style. The fashion show also echoes broader trends seen across Indian design schools, where student showcases are increasingly celebrated as cultural milestones and gateways to professional careers.
