

Sobhita Dhulipala Wows in Manish Malhotra Tissue Saree

Published on 06 Jan 2026 | By IFI Correspondent

Bollywood actor and style icon Sobhita Dhulipala made a head-turning fashion statement as she kicked off the New Year in a sumptuous gold-hued handwoven tissue saree designed by ace couturier Manish Malhotra. The look, rich with intricate zardozi embroidery and traditional craftsmanship, captured both timeless elegance and contemporary glamour.

A Regal Ensemble Rooted in Craftsmanship

Dhulipala's saree, crafted from luxurious handwoven tissue silk, featured dense antique zardozi borders and ornate motifs that shimmered under lights — a hallmark of artisanal Indian embroidery. Such detailing not only highlights the finesse of traditional techniques but also reaffirms the saree as a fashion statement suited for special occasions and celebrations.

Complementing the saree's golden luminosity, the actor paired it with bold emerald and polki jewellery, adding a rich contrast and enhancing the regal allure of her ensemble.

Timeless, Yet Modern

While rooted in heritage textiles and embroidery, the styling of the look balanced classic grace with contemporary sensibility — a blend that has come to define Dhulipala's evolving fashion persona. Known for her affinity towards Indian wear and sophisticated draping choices, she once again demonstrated how traditional six yards can be re-imagined for modern aesthetics.

Spotlight on Indian Textiles and Couture

This appearance also underscores the growing spotlight on Indian handwoven fabrics and detailed embroidery in celebrity fashion, particularly at a time when global taste for South Asian craftsmanship continues to rise. Manish Malhotra's tissue silk creations — prized for their sheen and delicate structure — have become favourites among leading actresses and fashion influencers across India
