

High Flying Action: How “Sardar 2” Is Raising the Stunt Game

Published on 09 Feb 2026 | By IFI Correspondent

The Tamil cinema landscape is gearing up for one of its most adrenaline-charged offerings in 2026 with “Sardar 2”, the eagerly awaited sequel to the 2022 hit Sardar. Directed by P.S. Mithran, the sequel promises audiences an action-packed spectacle that pushes its cast and crew into challenging new territory — especially in stunt work and preparation.

Leading the charge alongside returning star Karthi is actress Malavika Mohanan, who has been sharing rare glimpses of her intense training for the film’s stunt sequences. Fans on social media were treated to behind-the-scenes visuals showing Mohanan strapped into harnesses and mastering complex rope work essential for performing high kicks and aerial actions — sequences she described as both nerve-racking and rewarding.

“These harnesses are what keep us suspended when we jump or float through the air,” Mohanan wrote about her preparation, noting that while rope work was initially tricky, she’s gained confidence and skill through extensive practice. Her enthusiasm reflects the growing trend in Indian cinema where performers take a more hands-on, athletic approach to action roles.

A standout highlight of Sardar 2 is a dramatic mid-air fight scene between Karthi and Mohanan, reportedly staged inside what appears to be the fuselage of an aircraft. According to sources close to production, both actors underwent rigorous physical training to ensure the sequence looked authentic and thrilling on screen — a marked evolution from typical action choreography.

Beyond the elaborate stunt work, Sardar 2 aims to build on the original spy thriller’s success by adding deeper political themes and emotional depth, even as it delivers high-octane moments. Produced by Prince Pictures and Ivy Entertainment, with music by Sam C.S., the film retains its technical ambitions with cinematography by George C. Williams and editing by Vijay Velukutty.

As anticipation builds for its summer 2026 release, the film’s mix of daring physical performance and narrative expansion marks it as one of the season’s most talked-about Tamil releases, cementing its place in the growing wave of commercially ambitious Indian action cinema.
