

Y2K Fashion Gets a Modern Twist in Pooja Hegde's Latest Outfit

Published on 13 Feb 2026 | By IFI Correspondent

Bollywood actress Pooja Hegde recently turned heads with a fresh take on early 2000s fashion, blending nostalgic Y2K elements with contemporary styling in a casual yet eye-catching outfit. Her style moment was documented in a recent lifestyle feature by NDTV, highlighting how she mixed a bandana top with denim to create a laid-back yet fashion-forward look.

For her casual outing, Hegde chose a bandana-style top — a quintessential Y2K piece — and paired it with denim, breathing new life into a trend that has been resurging among style enthusiasts globally. The Y2K revival, rooted in early 2000s culture, has seen fashion lovers embrace playful and nostalgic elements like bandana tops, low-rise denim and minimalistic accessories in recent seasons.

Hegde styled her look with thoughtful accessories that kept the vibe cohesive and modern. A delicate gold-toned choker added a subtle shine at the neckline, while a stack of slim bracelets and a structured wristwatch balanced practical elegance with the outfit's relaxed energy. A light blue woven handbag introduced a soft pop of colour that tied back to the denim palette.

Her beauty styling complemented the outfit's youthful spirit: neatly pulled-back hair in a bun with a few face-framing strands, dewy makeup with a warm peach blush and soft brown eyeliner, and rosy-nude lips that kept the emphasis on the ensemble rather than dramatic glam.

Fashion experts note that the revival of Y2K fashion signals a broader trend of re-interpreting nostalgic styles with a contemporary sensibility. Pieces like bandana tops, low-rise cuts and denim combinations — once definitive of early-2000s street style — are now being revisited with modern fits and accessories to appeal to today's trendsetters.

Hegde's recent outfit demonstrates how elements from past decades can be refreshed for today's fashion landscape, suggesting that nostalgia and innovation can coexist effortlessly when thoughtfully styled.