Socialite and fashion figure Radhika Merchant turned heads at a recent family wedding celebration in Mumbai, stepping out in a breathtaking crystal-embellished ivory lehenga that blended traditional Indian sartorial elegance with contemporary luxury.

The ensemble, custom-crafted by acclaimed Indian designers Abu Jani & Sandeep Khosla, featured a meticulously hand-embroidered ivory skirt and blouse adorned with fine silk thread, crystals, and sequins. The outfit's A-line silhouette and scalloped details gave it an ethereal yet structured finish.

Stylist Esther Pinto completed the look with statement jewellery — including a striking necklace, jhumki earrings with ear chains, a maang tika, rings, and matching kadhas — that introduced vivid pops of colour against the serene ivory palette.

Her makeup echoed the bridal-glam aesthetic, highlighting feathered brows, subtly lined eyes and glossy pink lips, while her hair was styled in twisted crown braids flowing into loose waves — reinforcing the regal, princess-like impression.

Radhika, known for her refined fashion sensibility and social presence, wore the look to attend the wedding festivities of Vikram Salgaocar and Shweana Poy Raiturcar, relatives of the Ambani family.

The outfit — a blend of craftsmanship and luxury styling — underscores how Indian fashion continues to bring traditional techniques and modern aesthetics together for high-profile celebrations.
