Nestled in the bustling city of dreams, Shruti's home blends modern design with rustic Indian charm, creating a sanctuary of creativity and comfort.

With exposed brick walls, a library corner, a music den, and quirky boho accents, every corner of Shruti's home tells a personal story.

A Living Space That Breathes Personality

The highlight? Unfinished concrete walls paired with polished concrete flooring, creating a raw yet refined backdrop.

The room also features a projector screen, perfect for her movie marathons and binge-watching sessions.

Dining & Kitchen: Shades of Pink and Mint

Her dining area reflects her love for vibrant hues with soft pink tones and an Aztec print rug placed under the table.

The adjacent kitchen, done in a soothing mint green, balances warmth with functionality, offering a fresh and welcoming vibe that complements the rest of the home's aesthetic.

A Music Lover's Paradise

Music forms the heart of Shruti's home. A dedicated music space filled with guitars, a tanpura, a bass, and an amplifier sets the mood for spontaneous jam sessions.

Her spiritual corner, complete with a Lord Murugan idol and tarot cards, reflects her spiritual side and love for introspection.

She also cherishes her upright piano, where she spends countless hours composing and playing music. The space is further personalized with a vintage boombox, rubber ducks, and a songwriting diary gifted by her father, Kamal Haasan.

Trophies on the Fridge, Not in a Cabinet

Unlike conventional stars, Shruti doesn't display her awards in glass cabinets. Instead, they sit proudly on top of her refrigerator — a nod to her grounded approach to success.

But the most sentimental item in her home is a 25-year-old photo frame featuring her father Kamal Haasan holding baby Shruti and her sister Akshara — a reminder of where it all began.
